Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:

I am writing regarding the current developments involving actions by AOL Time Warner to subvert the proposed settlement between DOJ and Microsoft. I am in favor of the settlement and believe that the government needs to stay neutral in the battle between AOL and Microsoft and others. Taxpayers have already suffered enough expenses as a result of previous administration picking sides. Each litigant needs to pay their own lawyers and pursue their own legal objectives without the government playing favorites.

All parties involved have substantial resources to make their case. It is my opinion that the best that the government can do is to provide an unbiased court where each party can make their case before an impartial judge. That has already proven to be a tall order, given the conduct of Judge Jackson.

Best regards and good luck
